

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1893.

NO. 19

MIDDLEBURG.

—Elder J. Q. Montgomery will preach at Grove Sunday at 5 o'clock.

—Mr. Wesley has a portion of the material on the ground for his new dwelling and Geo. W. Jeter has the contract to build it.

—The bank question seems to be sleeping. Liberty asserted herself and the projectors became frightened and went into their holes, and we presume carried their holes in after them.

—A heavy rain storm, accompanied by hail and wind, passed over town Saturday. Some of our less courageous citizens were a little frightened at its first appearance, but we hear of no damage being done.

—Miss Minnie Dinwiddie has arrived and taken charge of J. M. Durham's millinery business. W. T. Durham went to Somerset Monday to look after his stove business. Prof. Griffin is said to be getting the hand boys out of the rut into which they have drifted since the departure of their last teacher.

—A fight more amusing than dangerous took place on the street early Monday morning between Reuben Staton and R. H. McAninch. Trouble among their children seems to have been the cause of the combat. As the combatants each tip the beam at 220 pounds, the fight can be better imagined than described. Those who saw it say it was hard to tell which would have carried off the belt, had they not been separated, though it was plainly evident that both were glad when Melvin Bell happened along and pulled them apart.

—A story comes from Grove of a young man who, after playing his sister and another young lady with whisky till they were drunk, carried them to Sunday-school, where the young ladies became sick and in the presence of the congregation and while the Sunday-school was in session, vomited upon the floor and had to be carried out. A sad story indeed! Yet we have sufficient evidence of its truthfulness. The saddest part of it is, the young ladies were Sunday-school scholars and one of them had filled the position of teacher. For the sake of their parents and other relatives, whom we know to be clever people, we withhold their names from the public, with the hope that they will never be guilty of the like again.

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—James N. Sharp and K. D. Perkins were in Frankfort last week.

—Mr. Charles Finley, who travels for the Proctor Coal Co., was at home last Sunday.

—Mr. John B. Fish and wife spent Sunday with Mrs. Fish's father, Mr. E. F. Arthur.

—There was a good log tide in the river last Thursday and our mills succeeded in catching several thousand logs.

—There was a severe wind storm here last Monday, which injured the dwelling of E. N. Stealy considerably, but no serious damage was done.

—Circuit court begins here next Monday with a full docket. The term will only last two weeks, so there will not be time to try the Harlan cases.

—Garrard Davis, who killed James Finley, of this place, at Jellico, a few weeks ago, surrendered to officers last week, waived an examination and gave a $5,000 bond for his appearance at the Jacksboro circuit court.

—The jury in the McHargue case at Harboursville, for the murder of Wm. Sadtler, of this county, returned a verdict of 15 years. It is thought by most people here that he should be well satisfied with so short a term.

—Judge J. W. Alcorn, of Stanford, was here Tuesday taking some depositions in cases he has in the Whitley circuit court. Misses Sallie and Sadie Ellis, of Stanford, spent last Saturday and Sunday visiting Dr. Blain.

—There was a meeting of the stock holders of the Williamsburg Bank last Saturday and Dr. A. Gatliffe was elected president, G. A. Dunham vice-president, John W. Siler cashier and C. H. Keeton assistant cashier, with about the same board of directors as last year.

—Rev. James E. Terry preached at the Christian church last Sunday and the church has made him a call to come and preach for them. He graduates at the Bible College this year and is valedictorian of his class. Rev. W. B. Estes filled the Baptist pulpit last Sunday. Rev. W. J. Johnson, who has been the pastor of the Baptist church here for several years, has resigned an account of ill-health and left for Huntsville, Ala., on Tuesday morning, where he will make his future home.

—Judge French Tipton, of the Richmond Climax, read an interesting paper before the Filson Club, at Louisville, Monday, on Church Discipline in the Early days in Madison County.

—Wednesday 141 republican rascals were turned out of post-offices, of whom 17 were in Kentucky. W. J. Hamilton was appointed post-master at Huxley, Laurel county, and Mrs. R. Abner at Tegen, Clay county.

—It begins to look like the World's Fair will be open on Sundays.

DANVILLE.

—An infant son of James C. Boddow died of pneumonia Tuesday evening.

—The ladies of the Methodist church gave a strawberry festival at the church Thursday.

—Kate Lee was given three months in jail and fined $300 for conspiracy to burn the city of Danville, but has moved for a new trial.

—L. D. Woods, of Cleveland, O., shot Barney E. Higgins, ex-mayor of Somerset, in the court house Tuesday afternoon, in the presence of a crowd of spectators. Higgins was standing at the foot of the stairs about ten feet from the door talking to Somerset people, when his companions were startled by a shot from a pistol in the hands of a man who was a stranger to most of them. The first shot was fired within two feet of Higgins' face, which grazed his nose. Woods fired again and Higgins was struck in the left breast. He fell to the floor and Wood fired three more shots at his prostrate form, the pistol snapping several times between each shot, only one of which struck Higgins. By this time the hall was filled with excited people and officers, who rushed down from the crowded court-room, where a trial was in progress. An officer asked who did the shooting, when Woods replied: "I did. Higgins ruined my sister. She is now in an insane asylum as a result of his work." Higgins was unconscious when first seen, but in a few moments became rational and being asked if he knew who shot him said, "No, I did not see the—". He did not give me a chance," Higgins, while mayor of Somerset and during a spree, assaulted Miss F. O. Woods, a sister of Woods, in the depot at Somerset. He was tried for unlawful detention and sent up for two years. The Court of Appeals granted him a new trial and he was given a change of venue to Boyle. His lawyers were not present when the case was called and it was continued till September. When Woods, who came as a witness, heard of this he seemed to become desperate, but his friends knew nothing of his intentions until they were startled by the shooting. In an interview Woods said: "I did not come here to kill Higgins, thinking that the law would take its course, but when I approached him in the court-house and heard him say that he had succeeded in having the case postponed again, my feelings were beyond control and I tried to kill him before I scarcely knew what I was doing." Woods was liberated on $10,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury, now in session.

Woods, who did the killing, was raised in Casey county, but is now a resident of Cleveland, O., where he has a family.

After a restless night, during which he grew constantly weaker, B. P. Higgins died at 6 o'clock Thursday morning. The Interior Journal has been advised that he made no statement in regard to the matter in which Miss Wood figured other than has been given the public. Indeed since Wednesday morning, when he seemed slightly better, he was in no condition to talk or think long in regard to anything. The remains will probably be interred in Cincinnati, if friends come to the aid of the distressed wife, who is here without money. At 10 o'clock the grand jury returned an indictment for murder against L. D. Woods, who did the shooting. He was brought into court, when Mr. J. W. Yerkes, of his counsel, asked for bail. This Judge Sautley said, as he was then advised, he must deny. He then remanded the accused to the custody of the jailer. It is possible that a trial may be asked for and granted during this term, which must close Saturday.

At present O. H. Waddell, of Somerset, and J. W. Yerkes, of Danville, are the only counsel retained for the defense.

DANVILLE, May 4, 3:30 P. M.—Woods has been released on a $15,000 bond.

A. A.

—The new minister to Mexico arrived at his post this week and was given a grand banquet by the American citizens sojourning at the Mexican Capital.

—James Collins, the notorious horse thief, was taken from a train at Sherman and lynched by a mob composed mostly of farmers, who had suffered from his raids.

—The Shakers at Pleasant Hill in Mercer county, are preparing an elegant display of the silk made by them to be exhibited at the World's Fair.

BRODHEAD.

—Elder J. W. Masters filled his appointment at the Christian church last Saturday night and Sunday. Subject on Sunday, Resurrection of the Dead.

—Woodyard & Cherry have begun the foundation for their new store building. They propose to build a large and commodious house, which when finished will add much to the town. Mr. Thos. Cherry is a business and enterprising man.

—Mrs. Mattie Carter is teaching a select school at the Academy. She is a fine teacher and seems to be giving general satisfaction. We would advise our young teachers who wish to teach and are not thoroughly qualified to attend her school. She now has about 35 scholars enrolled.

—The case of A. G. Talbot, referred to in last week's letter, was tried Saturday. The Commonwealth was ably represented by County Attorney G. W. McClure and the defendant was well defended by Hon. R. C. Warren, of your town. The jury failed to find a verdict. There were seven for conviction and one for acquittal. The case is now set for next Saturday.

—The Hon. E. B. Smith, the enterprising editor of the Mt. Vernon Signal, made a flying visit to our town Monday. Dr. I. S. Burdett was called to Corbin to treat some eye patients. Miss Alice Lewis is visiting her sister, Mrs. Mattie Carter. Miss Alice Bethurum is the guest of Miss Susie Hutchison. Mrs. W. H. Colyer and Mrs. J. H. Albright have a fine line of nice hats on hand and wish their lady friends to come and examine them before buying elsewhere. Dr. R. L. Davison, of Stanford, is here and will remain in our town this week practicing his profession, dentistry, and any one wishing to see him can find him at the Albright House. Misses Robert Yeakey and Lelia Pointer went to Gam Sulphur last Sunday. Mrs. Richard Pike, of Pine Hill, brought her little girl down last Sunday and she has entered Mrs. Carter's school. Mr. J. G. —Mr. D. G. Slaughter is preparing to move his family over to Green Briar in a few days. We regret to give them up, even for the summer, but the youngsters will enjoy making them a visit to the Springs.

—There was a young elopement from your town who had quite a lively experience here last week. But as you are so good not to publish the names of our Crab Orchard boys when they get lively in your town, I withhold this youngster's name. He was homeward bound, with his brain in a whirl, when as he got beyond Cedar Creek, he whirled out of his buggy and the terrible yells he gave so frightened his horse that it began to run. His groans and cries alarmed a family living near. They kindly took care of him and went to the rescue of the poor horse, which had fallen by the roadside and turned the buggy over. The young man told his friends some one knocked him out and tried to rob him.

—Four of Lancaster's pretty girls, Misses Austin, Simpson and Henry, with the latter's brother, spent Sunday with Misses Maud Pettus and Lizzie Beazley.

Aunt Lucinda Stephenson is at home, after a protracted visit at Harrodsburg. She is upwards of 80, yet her mental faculties are as bright as ever. With a wonderful memory she recalls the scenes of long ago, and is entertaining alike to old and young. Every one is glad to see Aunt Sinda, as she is sure to have some joke to tell, or something of interest that happened when times were better than now.

There is nothing I have ever used for muscular rheumatism that gives me as much relief as Chamberlain's Pain Balm does. I have been using it for about two years, four bottles in all, as Chamberlain required, and always keep a bottle of it in my home. I believe I know a good thing when I get hold of it, and Pain Balm is the best I have ever met with. W. B. Denny, dairyman, New Lexington, O. 50 cent bottles for sale by W. B. McRoberts, Druggist, Stanford.

While Mr. T. J. Richey, of Allona, Mo., was traveling in Kansas he was taken violently ill with cholera morbus. He called at a drug store to get some medicine and the druggist recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy so highly he concluded to try it. The result was immediate relief, and a few doses cured him completely. It is made for bowel complaint and nothing else. It never fails. For sale by W. B. McRoberts, Druggist, Stanford.

It can be readily seen that this is one of the finest bred saddle stallions in the State, with the very best saddle blood coursing through his veins, backed up on both sides by thoroughbreds. In addition to this stallion's saddle qualities, he has a bold, open trot, which eminently recommends him as a sire of high class combined horses. SENTINEL 21479

RECORD 2:20 1/2

Which was made with but little handling. Sentinel 21479 was sired by Belmont 2:14, by Sentinel, he by Hutchinson Chief, 2d dam by Long's Hamiltonian; 3d dam a thoroughbred.

Sentinel 21479 is a beautiful dark bay, 16 hands high, heavy mane and tail, and pronounced, by competent judges to be the handsomest horse in Kentucky.

In selecting a stallion I endeavored to get one with a gentle disposition, combined with size, form, fine square trotting action, speed and individual merit as well as pedigree. As a sire I am satisfied that his success is assured, as he has some very promising two-year-olds that I am sure will go in the 10 list this year. Two of them were sold at the Lexington sales this year and brought good prices.

Sentinel 21479 will make the season of 1893 at my stable at McKinney.

At $15 to Insure a Living Colt.

Money due when colt stands up and sucks, mares parted with or bred to another horse.

Grass furnished at $2 per month. Not responsible for accidents should any occur.

It is very gratifying indeed to observe that the Commercial-Gazette, which is never so happy as when abusing him, has at last had the courage to commend something said by Mr. Cleveland. Speaking of his address before touching the electric button, which set the machinery of the World's Fair in motion, it says pointedly and truthfully: The president's address was brief, earnest, well befitting the occasion and withal deeply patriotic. Mindful of the presence of foreign representatives in which he stood, and in the midst of results accomplished by efforts which have been exerted longer than ours in the field of man's improvement, he did not hesitate to call attention to the benefits of popular education, to the unparalleled advancement and wonderful accomplishments of a young nation, and the triumphs of a vigorous, self-reliant and independent people. Brave words were these and among the best the president has ever spoken.

The Lexington Leader celebrated the fifth anniversary of its birth by issuing a 40-page souvenir edition, which would do credit to any office in the United States. It is printed on book paper and besides a photographic reproduction in miniature of its first number printed May 1, 1888, it has cuts of its new building, its fine Cox Duplex press and many of prominent men and places. A complete history of many of the varied interests of the city is given, making it a most valuable sheet for future reference. The paper is a monument to the wonderful energy of Editor Sam J. Roberts, who almost by his individual exertions has succeeded in building up the best paying newspaper property in the Capital of the Blue-Grass. We congratulate him and hope the star of the destiny that he is working out for himself will always be in the ascendancy.

Col. SAM M. BURDET, who did his first newspaper work as a correspondent of this paper, sends us a copy of the Chicago Herald, of which he is now one of the editors, containing a description of the opening of the Fair and many illustrations of the event. Sam's rise in the journalistic world has been as steady as it is gratifying to his friends. He is peculiarly gifted as a writer and his intimate knowledge of public men and things makes him one of the best all-around men in the business. Kentucky editors will fare well when they get under the protecting wing of the genial colonel at the Fair.

Some people think it is a terrible crucifixion of the flesh to have to listen to a sermon over 30 minutes in length, and in some cases we agree with them. But there seems to be no limit to human endurance. The Behring Sea commission has just passed through the fiery ordeal of listening to a speech by J. C. Carter of two long weeks. The pay of the commissioners is good, but it would have to be doubled if we were on it and such things had to continue.

Men are seldom aware when they are well off. If Barney Higgins had accepted the too light verdict of two years in the penitentiary for criminally assaulting Miss Woods, without asking the court of appeals for a new trial, he would not have become the victim of her brother's pistol, and instead of now being a damned doing corpse, he would have been doing the State service at Frankfort. But perhaps it's better so.

The curtain has not yet been rung down on the final scene in the life of the great tragedian, Edwin Booth, and his doctors now say there is a chance for his recovery. The thousands who have sat spell bound under the magic of his unapproached presentation of Hamlet, will unite in the hope that he will be spared to again tread the stage he has done so much to adorn and elevate.

BRETT TUPTON, the Richmond Climax man, who went to England and then waded back, reaching his native land almost before any one knew he was gone, devotes nearly a column of type and a cut to show us the location of Hampton Roads. Love's labor lost, sonny. We were born and raised near them, besides any school boy knows all and more than you have published.

The president's address in opening the World's Fair was not, in printer's parlance, over two sticks full, but he managed to crowd into the few words he used more than many other less gifted men could have said in a column of solid nonpareil. The speech was a remarkable exemplification of the truism that brevity is the soul of wit, as well as of wisdom.

There is no superstition about that South Carolinian who wants to be the 13th man appointed as Consul to the Congo Free State. The other 12, all who have ever been sent there in that capacity, have died at their post.

Mr. Bissell, the post-master general, seems to be as fat-winded as he is corpulent. Many of his rulings are of a very silly nature, calculated to make democrats very tired. His last, to the effect that a post-master's term commences at the date of his confirmation and not at the time of his appointment, though he may have taken charge at once, is also calculated to produce a weariness of the flesh. Under such a ruling those republicans may serve nearly five years who were appointed during the recess of Congress. The idea is preposterous. Let Mr. Bissell revise his ruling, or carry his fat carcass back to Buffalo. He isn't at the head of the post-office department to invent excuses to keep the rascals in. The democrats have voted to put them out and they must go p. d. q.

Most of the legislators may deserve death for frittering away the State's time and money, but it was hardly thought that any one man or set of men would take it in their own hands to do it. Some one placed a cross tie on the track four miles from Frankfort, the other night, and badly wrecked the train upon which the legislators were returning from the races, but strange to say, not a law maker was even slightly hurt.

That stupid and one-ideaed sheet, the Voice, demands the resignation of John G. Carlisle, but as its still, small voice is too weak to be heard outside its office, it is feared the secretary will never know what is expected of him from that quarter. The Voice represents too small a constituency to make its demands felt anywhere. The prohibitionists are not in it yet, and we fear they never will be.

SARAPARILLA ALE is a new drink which is said to have the merits to cheer but not inebriate, and our prohibition friends can at last have an inning at the bar.

There is a young lady at Paris, whose name is Miss Ellic Fant. Quite suggestive, but not descriptive, as she is as petite as she is pretty.

—E. K. Thomas, of North Middletown, sold in Chicago 47 Short-horn cattle at an average price of $90. The 47th Duke of Aldrie brought the top price, $500.

—Wool WANTED.—Bring me your wool and get the highest market price. I want it and will buy it if you will give me an opportunity. Wm. Moreland, Stanford, Ky.

—The spring trotting meeting at Vienna closed with a cab race, which was won by a double team, which trotted 2 miles and 1 furlong to the cab in 6:23—about a 3:00 gait.

—Many of the entries for the $300 saddle stake at the Danville fair will contest for a similar stake at our fair. We may not offer quite as much money, but in the long run it will be equally as good a thing to try for.

—J. C. Johnson sold to Frank Harris, of Cincinnati, 126 extra export cattle for July and August delivery; also 32 for D. S. Johnson, of Lincoln, at 5c. Harris also bought 42 head of W. T. Robinson at same price.—Advocate.

—A hog on the ranch of Jule Gunte, near Gainsville, Texas, is said to be one of the largest in the world. It is a Poland China hog and is reported to weigh 1,320 pounds. It is three feet four inches high and seven feet two inches long.

—Misfortunes never come singly. In addition to the death of a very handsome filly by Lord Guy, son of the great Guy Wilkes, 2:15, R. H. Crow has just lost a grand colt by Temple Ban, 2:17, dam Black Bee, dam of H. C. T., 2:17. In the deaths of these colts he sustains a loss of $5,000 at least.

—Anderson & Spillman have bought of Hood Worthington, Josh Tillet, Tom Quinlin and J. K. Helm their crops of growing wheat at 65c. They also bought 150 barrels of corn from Joe Harlan at $2.40. Anderson & Spillman bought of Rue & Curry, of Cincinnati, a pair of 4-year-old mare mules, 154 hands high, for $270.—Advocate.

—Tom Yeager will be "in the fight" at the Fairs this year with a splendid string of trotters. There are in his stable already Wood Wilkes 2:25, Dan Mack 2:27, Woolfolk, a speedy son of Danville Wilkes, Major S. by Danville Wilkes and out of an Abdallah Mambrino mare, Mayne H. by Dorsey Goldust and out of a Black's Hambletonian mare, and Clara W. Carrol Bailey's gray mare. Others will be added soon and Tom's prospects for a brilliant campaign are splendid.

Now Try This

It will cost you nothing and will surely do you good if you have a cough, cold or any trouble with throat, chest or lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to give relief or money will be paid back. Sufferers from La Grippe found it just the thing and under its use had a speedy and perfect recovery. Try a sample bottle at our expense, and learn for yourself just how good a thing it is. Try at bottles free at A. R. Penny's drug store. Large size 50 cents and $1.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism; his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Illinois, had running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg; doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by A. R. Penny, drug-gist.

Mr. L. C. Carver and daughter, Miss Bertie, of Hustonville, visited friends here Tuesday. Miss Bertie has for several years been studying medicine and will be a full-fledged M. D. before long.

Mr. John S. Wells returned Tuesday from Florida, where he had been for five weeks attending the bedside of his sick father, who has at last begun to convalesce. Mr. Wells is undecided whether he will remain here or not, but his friends hope he will conclude to stay.

There is not an office-holder in Kentucky who tries harder and comes nearer doing his whole duty than County Superintendent W. F. McClary, nor is there one more thoroughly conversant with all the intricacies of the Common School curriculum. "Sretaw" in Harrodsburg says.

Mr. B. J. C. Howe, head of the Howe Pump and Engine Co., was here a day or two to see after the water works and the other plants attached, all of which he built and in which he retains a large interest. He went from here to Somerset, Pa., where he will put in water works, and if he gives the satisfaction that he did here, the people can rise up and call him blessed.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Stagg were called to Hustonville Wednesday by a dispatch stating that their mother, Mrs. Daniel Stagg, Sr., had suffered another stroke of paralysis and was in a precarious condition.

Lately Mrs. Stagg was alive at last accounts, but the end seemed very near. She is almost totally paralyzed and her periods of lucidity are very brief.

A recital will be given at the College Chapel on Monday evening, the 8th, at 8 o'clock, by some of the pupils of Miss Howard's music class. All lovers of classic music are invited.

Look at the label on which your name is printed and if it does not read May 5, 1893, or some date in the future, make the necessary preparations and pay for the paper. Next Monday, county court day, would be a good time to do this good deed.

The persons who sent us the communication signed "The Ladies of Crab Orchard," forget our invariable rule to publish no anonymous communications. Some responsible name must accompany every article to insure its publication in this paper.

John Warner has a hen that has laid an egg a day for the last 365 days. Those who are disposed to doubt the truthfulness of this statement have only to call on John, who will take pleasure in convincing them that he is in one respect if not more very much like the "father of his country."

We have four grades of "J. B." and "P. D." corsets. You can get anything you want in these goods. It will also pay you to see our draperies, lace curtains, carpets and especially our new dress goods, and some lines of ladies and gents' shoes and clothing, to be closed out in the next thirty days. Come before styles and sizes are broken. Hughes & Tate.

Shot himself.—Mr. Ed M. Nevins, who returned from Georgetown College Tuesday, had the misfortune to shoot himself in the hand that night. He was loading a pistol, when it was discharged, the ball entering the fleshy part of his right hand and lodging there. Dr. Brobaugh was called, but decided not to cut the ball out, as it would do less hurt for it to remain where it is.

In a drunken row at the Crab Orchard depot recently, John Warren cut Alonzo Baker and Baker cut Aaron Nobbs. County Attorney Paxton went up Tuesday to prosecute them and the result was that the two men so handy with their knives were held to the circuit court in $200 bonds each. The trial was before Judge Ward Moore and the Harrodsburg, per se, represented the accused.

Swapping.—Messrs. J. W. Ramsey and W. C. Hutchings have been trading considerably. The latter buys the former's house and lot, including his stock of groceries, for $2,150 and gives in part payment his interest in the livery stable on Depot street, which includes a number of horses, buggies, etc., at a little over $1,300. They will change businesses at once and Mr. Ramsey will move into the house that Mr. Hutchings vacates.

The Blondell and Conkling Farce Company is the next regularly billed show at Walton's Opera House. It will be with us two nights, May 15 and 16, and the repertoire includes "Our Cousin From the Country," "A Marriage a la Mode," "A Dollar for a Kiss," "McGinty's Trip to New York," "A Dude's Paradise" and "Traveling Musicians." Between the acts there will be specialties in singing, dancing acrobatic and contortion work. Prices 25, 35 and 50c.

A negro, claiming to be from Lebanon Junction, was in town Wednesday and notwithstanding the raw day, was going about barefooted. A reporter saw him and asked why he did not get shoes. His answer was, "I've got the money, boss, but am too stingy to spend it for shoes. I want to preach the gospel and I'm saving my money to obtain an education." If his story is true, he is indeed an exceptional darkey and must be well filled with love for his Maker.

The New York Stars gave a chaste and elegant musical entertainment Monday night, which was greatly enjoyed by the small crowd present. The violin, which has been called the king of instruments, assisted its reputation in the hands of Miss Drescher, whose playing was a marvel of sweetness and beauty. Dewey Heywood proved himself a very remarkable flutist and the other members filled their parts acceptably. The only objection that can be urged to the entertainment is that the fancy female impersonation business is out of place in a refined programme. It is disgusting enough in a minstrel performance. Financially the engagement was a failure to the manager, who had foolishly guaranteed an agreed amount, and while he doesn't mind paying the piper occasionally for other people to dance, he does object to contributing as much at one time as he did in this case.

Widows Galore.—A gentleman who has counted noses tells us that there are 58 widows in Stanford.

I am agent again for the Deering Machine Co. and will have on exhibition Monday samples of our binders and mowers. The hustling expert, R. D. Bruce, will be here to show them. Call and see them. W. H. Hays will assist me this year. See advertisement in next issue. J. H. Baughman.

K. S. M. S.—Dr. Steele Bailey, permanent secretary, asks us to announce that the 35th Annual Session of the Kentucky Medical Association will convene in the Opera House at Frankfort on Wednesday, May 10, at 11 A. M. The programme is full of magnificent papers. Scientifically and socially the meeting will be the equal of any one in the history of the Society.

"God made the country and man made the town," said Mr. Pope on one occasion. At present, at least, it must be admitted that the Deity is far ahead in the matter. The country never looked more beautiful, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather of the last month. It has been very damp and chilly for several days, but "slightly warmer and fair weather" is promised for to-day.

Appendicitis.—Dr. W. B. O'Bannon, assisted by Drs. S. C. Perkins and C. M. Thompson, performed the operation of laparotomy for strangulation of the vermiform appendix on John Gooch, of the Waynesburg neighborhood, a few days ago, and got more than a pint of pus through the incision. The patient rallied and at last accounts was convalescing. Mr. C. C. Gooch came after Dr. O'Bannon yesterday to perform a similar operation on Miss Sarah, daughter of J. M. Gooch.

Rowland.—Few people have any idea of how much the L. & N. is increasing in business at our railroad suburb of Rowland. Mr. C. L. Thompson, general foreman of the mechanical department, tells us that a new 120-horse power boiler has just been put in, another blacksmith shop added, a bolt and nut house built and the shops generally have been enlarged. Cars are rebuilt, painted, lettered, etc., there and an order for 80 ballast cars has just been completed, while six cabooses are under construction. In the shops are 20 car repairers, three mechanics and 20 laborers, whose pay roll last month reached $3,093, a large increase. Besides this force there are 30 engineers and the same number of firemen, who either live at Rowland or lay over there, two hostlers and two helpers, 24 conductors, 36 brakemen and other attaches, including train dispatchers, roadmaster, depot agents and clerks, making more than 250 men on the pay roll, who draw largely in excess of $10,000 a month. A big amount of this money is spent in Stanford and our merchants and others are the beneficiaries. The increase of force, not to say the retention of men there, is mainly due to our water works, which have given the company at a reasonable rate a never-failing supply of water. Mr. Thompson tells us that it comes down to them in bountiful supply under strong pressure and that he has it arranged to supply tanks, shops, etc., in the most convenient manner. Heretofore locomotive boilers had to be taken to Livingston to be washed out or to Louisville, if they were very dirty; now 40 are washed out at Rowland a month and still the company does not use as much water as it has a right to under the contract. Mr. Thompson says that all he needs now to make his shops the most complete on the road are electric lights, and he is going to try to have the wires extended thither. The city council build even wiser than it thought when it contracted with the Howe Pump and Engine Company to erect the water works and electric plant, against the wishes of the croakers. It has settled the location of the shops at Rowland, has given the citizens a cheap and excellent water supply, and it has created an activity in building and other enterprises hardly dreamed of five years ago. Stanford is in the procession and if she doesn't advance to the front it will be the fault of the old fogies.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

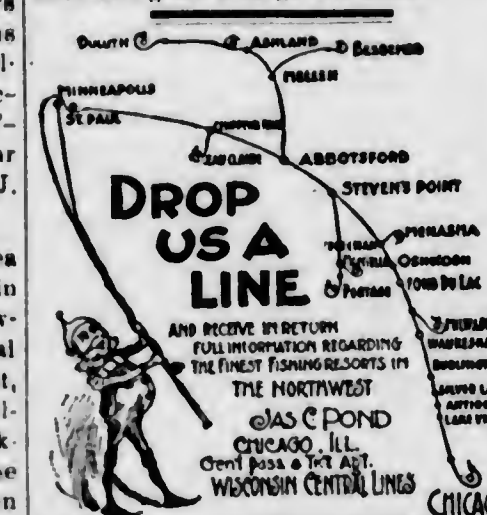

It is stated that in a short time Thos. Nelson Page, the well-known story writer, will marry Mrs. Henry Field, a wealthy widow of Chicago.

Mr. James W. Kuykendall, a widower of 34, and Miss Lizzie Todd, of 22 summers, accompanied by C. W. Graves and wife and G. L. Todd and Miss Lela Todd, drove over from Garrard yesterday and were made one after God's holy ordinance, Rev. A. V. Sizemore officiating. The ceremony occurred in the drug store of Mr. W. B. McRoberts and the attendants were Messrs. B. H. Danks and J. S. Wells, who were anxious to salute the bride with a kiss, but the groom was a dangerous looking man and they decided that discretion was the better part of valor. After taking in the sights of the city, the party wended their way homeward, all appearing as happy as big sunflowers.

Married, in the circuit clerk's office Wednesday morning, by the Rev. W. A. Slaymaker, Mr. James W. Broughton and Mrs. Mattie King, of the Crab Orchard section. A reporter of this paper gave away the bride and Attorney J. B. Paxton acted as best man. Last summer, while returning from Hazel Patch, on the train, Mr. Broughton's first wife dropped dead with a young child in her arms, leaving it and two other small children to be cared for by the husband. In his troubles Mrs. King proved an ever present help, and gratitude finally ripened into love, which the widow declared unhesitatingly that she reciprocated. It didn't take long then to arrange the preliminaries and the couple mounting a buckboard, to which an unbridled horse was attached, they made their way to town, after many provoking delays by the broncho, which occasionally took a notion to take a rest. The bride has three children also and the couple start life together with a ready-made family of six children, all under seven years of age, and a prospect that seems anything but blooming and gay. When asked by the reporter if his bride had also been married before, he replied "Yes, she's a widower too," and then recognizing his slip of the tongue, he added, "Excuse me, mister, if mistakes were haystacks there would be so many poor cows in the country." May his cows never want for hay, his children for bread or himself for the love of the wife who has promised to bestow her affection on him till death shall part them.

The Lewiston reservoir, near Huntsville, O., broke Wednesday and 12,000 acres of water flooded the surrounding country. The towns of Port Jefferson, Quincy, Logansville, Graff, Piqua, Troy and Dayton were in the course of the flood and great damage was done.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Mr. T. E. C. Brinly

Has the following to say about the Electropoise and how it cures rheumatism of the Gripe.

Office Brinly, Hiles & Hardy Co., Louisville, Jan. 30, 1893. Gents: While attending the Memphis Fair some months ago, I was attacked with severe pains in my arms and legs, the effects of gripe of last winter. I met your agent here, Mr. Harbin, who is an old friend, and he insisted that I use the Electropoise at his office, which I did with wonderful results. In a short time the pains left me and I concluded to rent a "Poise." When my rental time had expired I bought it, and would not part with it for any consideration. It is certainly a wonderful treatment, and it is more wonderful as to how it does its work, yet it does it. I think it is the duty of every man to make known to the afflicted any thing that will be of any benefit to them, and the Electropoise certainly will.

Very Respectfully,

T. E. C. BRINLY.

Mr. Brinly is one of the oldest and best known glow manufacturers in the country. The diseases cured by the Electropoise are not confined to any particular class of ailment. By its use oxygen is absorbed through the pores and membranes, adds strength and vigor to the entire system, and will cure any disease where there is vitality to build on and a cure is possible. We invite all to call or write and get full particulars.

HAUNTED BY A CRIME.

By CHARLES B. LEWIS (M. QUAD).

[Copyright, 1893, by Charles B. Lewis.]
[I was one of the coroner's jury impaneled in the case of an old man found drowned, and as soon as the mind had been washed off his face I recognized the unfortunate as a mendicant who had told me his story several days before.]

It was my intention to graduate as a lawyer, but while preparing myself for college a circumstance happened to change my plans and the current of my life. Eight or ten of the leading citizens of the town in which I lived formed a stock company and erected a large factory, and when ready to operate I was appointed cashier. I was then only 20 years old. Although my father was one of the stockholders, it was not on this account that I received the appointment. I had reasons to believe that he opposed it on the ground that I was too young and lacking in business experience, but at the same time he must have been pleased at my preference.

I was a popular young man. Everybody was my friend, and everybody was kind enough to say that I had a brilliant future before me. Some were disappointed when I took the place offered me, declaring that nature had intended me for a lawyer, but others insisted that I would develop business talents which would make me a wealthy man before I reached the age of 30. It is very pleasant for a young man to realize that he is popular and that everybody wishes him well, and in my case at least it did not result in throwing me off my balance. Before entering on my duties the president of the concern invited me to an interview one day and said:

"James, you have been elected to a very responsible position, and it is usual in such cases to exact a bond. You come from an honest family. All of us believe you to be an honest, straightforward young man. There are a dozen men in town willing to go on your bond, and for these reasons we feel secure without any. We shall trust you implicitly. All of us have known you from childhood, and we have no fear that you will go wrong."

Trust me? Why not? Had I found a dollar bill on the street I should not have rested content until making every effort to restore it to the loser. I could not remember of ever having told a lie. I regarded a thief with even more horror than a murderer. To have made me furnish a bond would have been one business in one sense, and yet in another it would have implied a distrust of my honesty which would have been gall and wormwood to me. Am I egotistical? No. Each one knows himself the best. If men truthfully declare themselves thieves, robbers and embezzlers, and the daily court records prove that they do, then why criticize others for asserting that they cannot be tempted to steal?

For three years all went well in the factory. As a matter of fact, I did develop a talent for financing, and those who had predicted well for me were not disappointed. After the first year the capacity was increased, and at the end of the third year we were able to declare a dividend of 12 per cent. That jumped our stock way above par. In the three years my salary was increased three times, and the semiannual examination of my books and accounts proved everything right to a cent. At the beginning of the fourth year, when there was another issue of stock, I was presented with $5,000 worth and the thanks of the board of directors for my untiring vigilance and sterling honesty. Wasn't that a thing to be proud of? I had a social standing second to none, and during the last month of the third year I was engaged to the beautiful and accomplished daughter of our president. When I went into his private office one day to broach the subject, he met me with:

"There, James, I know what you have come for, and I frankly confess that I am pleased and satisfied. Nellie is one of the best girls in all this world, and I know you will make her happy."

Taken all around, could any young man have asked for more. I was in the path leading to wealth and honor, and I could not blame other young men who envied me and sarcastically referred to me as one of fortune's favorites. The beginning of my downward career was a very simple circumstance, or rather two circumstances in one.

In looking over the safe one day I came across a package of $500, which had been mislaid by my assistant. It was just after an examination of my books, and the examination had been so much a matter of form that this money, paid in weeks before, had not been missed. You may say we had rather a loose system. I admit it. Find me a place where the cashier is not under bonds and is implicitly trusted, and I'll show you that same careless system. Things are careless because he is strictly honest, or because he is dishonest and wants to cover up shortages. The finding of that money was no temptation to me. I'd have chopped a hand off before embezzling it.

On that very day, however, one of our best customers in New York, who had happened that way almost by accident, paid the factory a visit. He had just cleared $28,000 in a pork deal and naturally wanted to talk about it. I had kept clear of all sorts of speculation, but when the man had explained his deal to me and told me of other speculation in which he had cleared handsome sums he started the fever which proved my destruction. He did not advise me one way or the other, and I never blamed him. Had I asked his advice he would probably have warned me not to risk a dollar.

I did not wait to think the matter over. I had invested my savings in real estate, and of course I could not sell my stock without questions being asked. I would take the $500 I have referred to. It never entered my mind that I might lose it. I should win, of course, and the money would be returned to the cash account. I called it a temporary loan from the factory. After I had invested it I had twinges of conscience. It wasn't exactly dishonest, but it was a breach of trust, and I felt degraded.

For the first time in my life I found it an effort to look other men square in the face. That should have been the turning point. I should have replaced the money and taken warning. I believe it was the worst thing that could have happened to me that that $500 made me $2,000 within a fortnight. Did I stop there? Of course not. The fact that I had hit it right satisfied me that I had the necessary nerve and acumen, and I reinvested. I made $1,500 on the next deal, but on the third was wiped out. You can guess what followed. I managed to dispose of my stock without suspicion, and it was swallowed almost at a gulp.

Up to the first day of June on my fourth year I had embezzled $10,000 of the company. My books would be examined on the 1st of July and the shortage discovered. Flight always follows embezzlement if the criminal can get away. Robbery precedes flight if there is anything left to lay hands on. I had $5,000 worth of real estate, and I could have borrowed $5,000 in cash almost without comment. Why didn't I do it and save myself? It never occurred to me to do so. When you have taken the first step, the descent is rapid. Your integrity is shattered, and you plan to complete your ruin rather than to restore yourself.

It is wonderful how rapidly the ruin of a man can be effected under what may be termed favorable circumstances. In the course of four or five months my degradation was complete. One night toward the last of June, having paved the way for a week or more, I robbed the safe of $48,000 and fled. I made for New York and got aboard a sailing vessel bound for England. About half of the money I took belonged to outsiders who had it in the safe for security. I ruined a grocer, a jeweler and a builder—all honest, upright men. I robbed an orphan child of a legacy. I took the last dollar belonging to a widow with five fatherless children. My father gave up his all and then drowned himself. The young lady to whom I was to be married lived out the rest of her days in an insane asylum. I crippled the business of the factory and sent its stock down to 60 and ruined two or three of my best friends. And what did I gain by it all? I had figured, as all men seem to under the circumstances, that with my capital I would go into business abroad and in time make restitution.

HE WAS OLD AND FEEBLE AND PENNILESS.

While the captain of the vessel had taken me as a passenger, I soon discovered that he looked on me as a suspect. The company did not seek my arrest, but even before we sighted the shores of England I felt like a hunted wolf. I remained in Liverpool a month. In two instances I sought to go into business. I had the money, but who was I—where were my credentials—who could vouch for me? I know that a detective followed me for a couple of days. I know that the people at the hotel thought me queer. Even my efforts to appear at ease doubtless told against me. I went to Paris, and within three days after my arrival I was robbed of $12,000. When I went to complain, I was asked to identify myself—what I was doing abroad—if the money belonged to me. I could not admit that I was an absconder, and therefore the robber was allowed to enjoy his plunder unmolested.

In Berlin I met Americans from New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and St. Louis—that is, I could have met them, but did not dare to. I did not even dare to admit that I was an American. I became acquainted with a German inventor and loaned him $3,000 on what appeared to be good security. When I found this security worthless and threatened him with the law, he only laughed at me and told me to go ahead. He was satisfied in his own mind that there was something wrong about me. One day while I was in a public restaurant a man slipped me on the shoulder by mistake. I sprang to my feet so suddenly as to upset the table before me, and no doubt every line of my face betrayed fear and guilt. The man apologized, and I sat down and made a great effort to regain my composure. The harm was done, however. I heard enough to satisfy me that I was looked upon as a fugitive from justice.

I went to India and thence to Japan. I was robbed in both countries, and I also lost considerable sums by gambling. While on the voyage back to Singapore I was shipwrecked and lost my last dollar. There was an American consul at Singapore, but I dared not apply to him. There were American tourists there, but I had denied my nativity and had no claim on them as fellow countrymen. There wasn't one single day for the first two years that I did not fear arrest. Night never came without its bitter reflections. When I finally concluded that the factory company had not sought my arrest, I was further debased. It hurt me to think they would not look upon me as a scoundrel deserving of prison bars.

I am an old man, as you see. It is nearly 40 years since my flight. All this time I have been an outlaw from my country. I have never been able to secure a position of trust. It has seemed as if every man's hand was against me. I have been compelled to labor at the most slavish pursuits to earn my daily bread, and I have never made a friend who did not suspect me in time to be guilty of worse than my crime. I have wandered over the face of the earth—penniless, friendless—a man without a country or a home. A thousand times in these 40 years I have wanted to come back here and give myself up and ask to be punished.

A year ago I landed in the United States and made no halt until I reached the town from which I fled so many years ago. The factory was wiped out years ago, thanks to my robbery; the widows and the fatherless were dead or scattered; the old stockholders not to be found; none of my relatives left. I could not find a man who even remembered my crime or had heard my name mentioned. I had been blotted out of existence. I was dead to the world. Here where I had started out in life with such bright prospects, here where I had brought wreck and ruin to so many, they laughed at me when I wanted to be put under arrest and punished by the law.

I have been a wanderer since—a beggar, I should say—living on the crusts and crumbs of charity. I am old and feeble and can scarcely move about, but death is slow in coming. What will it be for me? It will be the end—nothing more: a grave in Potter's field—forgetfulness. Do you realize what the first false step led to? That departure from the plain and open path of integrity which is before all men and leads to honor and wealth wrecked half a dozen homes and careers. It outlawed one who might have filled a chair of state. It beggared one who might have had thousands to give in charity. Repentance comes, but it always comes too late!

[His story affected me deeply. While I sat pondering over it he bowed his head and wept. What could I say to comfort him? There could be no solace for him. He was old and feeble and penniless. I could make the next few days a little brighter for him, and I slipped a bill into his trembling hand and went away without a word. I did not know what to say. When I was a hundred steps away, I paused and looked back. He had not moved. I wanted to go back, and yet what could I have said to bring him peace of mind?

"It's an easy job," the coroner said as we viewed the body. "He's an old vag who got tired of life and decided to end it. No money, no papers, no identity. It's a case of 'found drowned'—unknown." Please hurry up, as I want to get him under ground this afternoon!"]

The Alkali Regions of Arizona.

The curious alkali pots or geysers are near Shen's pass, the birthplace of the Apaches, and it is a fitting place for them too. Whenever I have looked at this grim and ghastly region I have not wondered that the Apaches are savage. In the distance the country is as white (but for some opaline spots) as though melted lead had been poured over it. It is as white as snow and hard as plaster. There are no flourlike spots anywhere, and the wind does not carry the curious whiteness into the air. All that is to be seen is alkali and its effect. The reservoirlike places in the dazzling white are actual reservoirs of alkali water. Some of them are but as large as a bucket in diameter, while others are 30 or 40 feet across.

I have strung 100 feet of rias together and dropped it in and found no bottom. Neither cattle nor horses nor any living thing, so far as I know, will ever touch the water. They dare not, for a monthful of it would kill. About the alkali pots and large reservoirs and scattered over the lava rocks, hot in the blazing sun, are the different forms of the cactus, and among all at times may be seen mottled reptiles crawling lazily in the heat.—San Francisco Examiner.

Drying Sheets and Tablecloths.

It is a good plan, always considered of course whether time and strength will allow, to take linen sheets and tablecloths from the line when about half dry, shake them and smooth them out, fold them once over and hang them over the line without any stretching or pulling. A couple of pins at a little distance from either edge will keep them in place. This gives more line room, which is often greatly needed and allows the pieces to dry in much better shape.

Many laundresses seem to think that clothes may be hung on the line in any way whatever, wrinkled, folded or twisted, as the case may be, but this means just so much additional work when ironing day comes. Things that are done right in the first place save much labor and perplexity as well as a little wear and tear of the articles themselves.—New York Ledger.

Love's Perseverance.

Nothing succeeds like success, and a young man in Detroit is in a fair way to prove the truth of the axiom. If perseverance is any sign of a duck's nest. He has been in love with a girl for a long time, and there has been no doubt in the minds of their respective friends that she has refused him more times than one. Not long ago he told his roommate that on that evening he was going to ask her again. At midnight when he returned he was so cheerful that his friend hardly thought it necessary to ask him about his success, but he did.

He shook his head.

"What! She didn't refuse you, did she?"

"Yes."

"That's too bad. By Jove, I'd let her go."

"It's all right," said the suitor confidently. "I didn't expect any better luck. It's the thirteenth time I've asked her, and of course she wouldn't accept. I've got an open field now before me, and you bet I'll have her yet."—Detroit Free Press.

A Reproof.

Old Aunt Dinah was a colored woman, who had a remarkably strong voice and would sing and cry "glory" with such vigor as to be heard above all the rest of the congregation, but she was of an unpleasantly "singing" disposition.

It was the custom at the missionary meetings of the church she attended to take up a collection during the singing of the hymn, "Fly Aboard, Thou Mighty Gospel!" in the midst of which Aunt Dinah always threw back her head, closed her eyes and sang away at the top of her lungs till the plate had passed her by.

The collector, who was a man of plain speech, observed this habit of the old woman's, and one evening when he came to her seat he stopped short, and surveying her rapt countenance said bluntly:

"Look-a-here, yo' Aunt Dinah! What's de good ob yo' singing an' usin' in 'Fly Aboard, Thou Mighty Gospel,' ob yo' deen' gill nuffin to make her fly?"—Youth's Companion.

"Ah, that's better," exclaimed the little girl. "I shall like you very much. Trained nurse," she continued, pointing to a cage hanging near the window, "let me introduce you to my trained curlew."

BEAUTIES OF SPRING.

NATURE'S TINTS THE BASIS OF MOST SPRING FABRICS.

Ashes of Roses Redivivus—Light Browns In Vogue Once More—The New Parasols Large, but Frail and Not Much Protection Against the Sun.

(Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.)

F SPRING has brought us many beauties in the way of goods, we also owe a debt of gratitude to the designers of the beautiful tints that now obtain and which harmonize so well with the bright spring days. We have the tender green of the springing grass, the purple of the violets, the gold of the daffodils, and the blue of the forget-me-not, and the delicate color of the lilac. And besides these we have rose leaf pink, apple blossom and the poetic ashes of roses.

Ashes of roses has sprung into a sudden popularity, as it well deserves to, for a lovelier shade was never produced. There is a blending of a dozen shades in it—pearl, white, pink, blue, violet, and ashes over all. It is the handsomest in broadcloth and cashmere, but it is more poetic in plain challis or crepe de chine. To be its handsomest it needs to be self-trimmed—that is to say, to have plain bias ruffles, folds or pinked flounces of the same material, all lightly gathered and superposed.

I give an illustration of a gown made of ashes of roses cashmere, with five pinked flounces over sapphire blue velvet, but if the velvet was to be replaced by cashmere it would be a more elegant gown—at least to my taste. It is trimmed with velvet ribbon bows and ends. The ashes of roses goes better with soft rich green than any other color, though some affect the voyante magenta.

Another new color is seen in cloth and light spring woolsens, and that is a pale buff color with a hint of green somewhere. Browns are quite popular in the spring wools, but only in the lightest and most delicate shades. I took particular notice of one beautiful brown dress which a friend of mine bought as a compliment to my taste. It had three folds at the bottom and was walking length and only three yards and a half around the bottom. The waist had breasted made of folds narrowing in at the waist line and simply stitiched. To wear with this and other equally handsome gowns my friend had a royal purple velvet Russian blouse coat with a full front, the whole trimmed with gold galloon and passementerie. The hat was of gold and purple velvet. The costume might seem to be too brilliant, and a year or so ago would have been considered rank heresy in color, but now it calls forth only notes of admiration.

The new parasols to carry with the dainty summer gowns and for carriages are more than beautiful. They are made of the most delicate and filmy material and decorated with yards upon yards of gathered lace, mostly white. Some of them are made of the new bayadere striped silk, which brings the stripes around like borderlines, and at the edges of these and around the top spike are ruffles of accordion plaited silk, the pattern becoming accentuated by the closeness of the stripes.

Other parasols have a foundation of pink or maize colored mull, with a perfect smother of fine white lace over them. Some are of regular millinery's net, with white mull drawn over it, and over this exquisite black chantilly lace laid on smooth. Under the scallops at the edge is a plaited ruffle of white crepe lisse overlaid by narrow but very fine chantilly.

There are some lionton point parasols, with pink or maize silk beneath, and some of other white lace, but the preference seems to be for the lightest and airiest possible effects. Two or three were made of delicately tinted printed muslin, with the borders gathered or plaited for ruffles.

Naturally these frail though quite large parasols are small protection against the sun, but they make beautiful and charming backgrounds for the face, and they cast a shade over the features that is always beneficial. They are dainty trifles, but they go very far toward making up the off smug beauty of the summer girl.

I must mention one fact I have noticed, and that is that there is an unusual amount of real lace seen upon millinery. On one large poke shaped hat alone there was a falling frill of beautiful point lace nearly three inches deep, which was gathered so that it certainly held two yards. It drooped over the face. The hat was covered with velvet and jon quills.

FIN DE SIECLE FUN.

"A fine old gentleman"—you know the sort—With courtly air and consequential port: In dress fastidious to the last degree, But favoring styles of some past century; One from among the last invalids was sweet, Old saws, old jokes he lived on Chestnut street—

All things to bygone standards he referred, And "the old school" was his familiar word. He loved to gibe at "this degenerate age," Flung some special volleys at our class, Citing the elder Booth, Macready, Keon, With lesser lights his favored eyes had seen. Thus at his club—the oldest in the town—Life's daily doings met his nightly frown. Until his friends, as low their patience ran, Resolved to trap the "fine old gentleman." So on a night when he was at his worst And the whole modern universe accused, When dinner, served as often times approved, Was under way, the soup had just removed— A well instructed stevedore brought the fish. The "fine old gentleman" essayed the dish. Then, all disgust at cook and waiter both, He fiercely launched a fine old fashioned oath. Whereto the servant, bowing lowly, said, "The dish for your especial taste was made, For"—with a wink at those who chose him—"That marked, sir, was one of 'the old school.'"—Life.

A Domestic Episode.

"I called," said the lady patient, looking round with a mysterious manner, "to consult you, doctor, about my foot."

"Yes?" said the doctor, stifling a yawn and looking at his watch. "Have you injured it in any way?"

"Oh, no; but it pains constantly, and I can hardly get my shoe on."

"Too small?" suggested the doctor, glancing cautiously in the direction of his patient's feet, which were invisible.

"No, doctor; my shoes are twice too large for me."

"Perhaps that is the trouble?" suggested the doctor, looking as if he was trying to believe it.

"It is only one foot that is affected."

"Perhaps you would better see a chiropodist," said the doctor.

"Oh, no, indeed. It's much more serious than that. I can't imagine what it is, but it is really very painful."

"And you say you have not injured it, madam?"

"Never. You see, I've not been in a railroad accident or a runaway, or been run over by an electric car, or anything. I did drop a sashpin on it one day when I was ironing, but it couldn't have been that—could it?"

"Well, I never!" said the doctor, as he wrote out a prescription in Latin for mustard liniment. "Of all sad things in life a sashpin is the saddest, and the most fatal."—Detroit Free Press.

It isn't in the ordinary way that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription comes to the weak and suffering woman who needs it. It's guaranteed. Not with words merely; any medicine can make claims and promises. What is done with the Favorite Prescription is this: It fails to benefit or cure, in any case, your money is returned. Can you ask any better proof that a medicine will do what it promises?

It is a purgative, restorative, tonic, a soothing and strength giving medicine, and a certain remedy for the ills and ailments that beset a woman. In "female complaints" of every kind, peritonic pain, internal inflammation or ulceration, bearing-down sensations, and all chronic weaknesses and irregularities, it is a positive and complete cure. To every tired, overworked woman, who is every weak, nervous and ailing one, it is guaranteed to bring health and strength.

The promptness and certainty of its cures have made Chamberlain's Cough Remedy famous. It is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup and whooping coughs, and is the most effective remedy known for these diseases. Mr. C. H. Main, of Union City, Pa., says: "I have a great sale on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I warrant every bottle and have never heard of one failing to give entire satisfaction, so I feel bold to say for W. B. Roberts, Druggist, Stanford."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.

When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.

When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.

When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.
